FR. BOB'S WEEKLY BLOG

It's been said that the only thing we take with us when we die is what we have given away.

Bishop Peter Sartain distinctively remembers hearing these words from the mouth of the late Francis Cardinal George. Bishop Sartain, who preached at Cardinal George's funeral Mass, did not forget them, nor should we.

Our readings this Sunday invite us to keep eternity in mind as we go about our life today. How easily we risk becoming the man in our Gospel who builds bigger and bigger barns for all his accumulated stuff but loses sight of what truly matters at the end of the day. As actor Denzel Washington bluntly stated, "You don't see a U-Haul truck behind a hearse."

Bottom line? Our stuff does not go with us: not our money, not our houses, not our cars, not our trophies, not our diplomas, not our job titles, not our antiques. The only thing we take with us is what we have given away IN LOVE.

We, as Christian disciples who believe in the death and resurrection of Jesus, should not view death as an end but as a transition. Our life in this world is a preparation for the next. God is preparing a dwelling place for those who live in His love.

Should we walk around every day talking morbidly about death? No! But neither should we ignore reality. Humanity has a 100 percent mortality rate. Each of our earthly bodies has an expiration date. We, however, need not live in fear when we have the truth of Christ.

Last week, the parishioners of St. Julie Billiart in Tinley Park were preparing to celebrate the retirement of Pat Kmak, the parish's long-time Director of Religious Education. Plans were in the works for an 11:30 A.M. Sunday Mass followed by a big party to honor Pat's decades of service. I planned to attend, having been the associate pastor for three years.

Word spread quickly in the parish and throughout the Archdiocese of Chicago that Pat Kmak died (age 83) last Saturday morning, the day before her party. Sad? You betcha! However, if what we believe is true about life and death, Pat is taking with her into eternal life what she gave away.

For decades, Pat Kmak helped share the faith with thousands of young children. How many First Reconciliations? How many First Communions? How many Confirmations? Pat was a wife and a mom, too. She leaves a legacy in the hearts of many who learned about Jesus from her.

I, too, am someone who learned from her. When I needed a motherly ear to turn to on a difficult day in the parish office, I'd slip into Pat's office. She'd listen. I'd yap. She'd finally offer some reassuring words and put things in perspective. Most of what troubles us today will not matter in the end. What will matter? The love we have given away to others.

We no longer live in fear when we finally make peace with our inevitable death. How is that possible? Because love is stronger than death. Jesus concretely showed us this eternal truth through His Paschal Mystery – His suffering, death, resurrection, and ascension.

The heightened fear we have all experienced over the past few years has been revelatory. The possibility of suffering and dying can trouble the human heart. When a culture no longer believes in God and no longer believes in life after death, all we are left to do is clutch our hands to this world with all our might. We lose sight of what is above and live only for what is below. Hence, we take a false sense of security in our earthly stuff (wealth, pleasure, power, honor).

Earthly tyrants will use fear of death to control people. Those who live in fear of death are easy to control and manipulate. Heroes and saints do not subscribe to fear. Heroes and saints keep one eye on what is above as they deal courageously with what is below.

Ponder the words of Gandhi:

"When I despair, I remember that all through history, the way of truth and love have always won. There have been tyrants and murderers, and for a time, they can seem invincible, but in the end they always fall. Think of it – always."

We will all have moments of doubt, moments of despair. We are human beings, after all. Part of us does not want to believe the Good News. However, doubt and despair need not be our permanent disposition. We have Good News, which is the Person of Jesus, the Christ. Spend some prayer time in front of the crucifix and ponder what Jesus took with Him when He died, WHO Jesus took with Him.

He took YOU with Him. May each of us live this truth today as we cooperate with God's grace in building the kingdom of heaven. Why do so many earthly tyrants throughout history need to "do away with God?" So, they can "be god." And that is the capital sin.

"The Resurrection gives my life meaning and direction and the opportunity to start over no matter what my circumstances." ROBERT FLATT

FR. MATT'S REFLECTION

"So, what do you want? What do you really want?" During more serious conversations, you might have asked these questions of someone who seems to be apathetic or aimless or who seems frustrated and paralyzed at the thought of different possibilities. Perhaps someone has asked you these same questions, or maybe you have even examined yourself and asked, "What do I want? What do I really want?" Those honest assessments about what a person fundamentally desires are personal and revelatory and can become a catalyst for changing one's goals, the efforts toward those goals and how one responds to different desires. All of the above might sound like superficial life-coaching or a poor attempt at psychology or philosophy; however, the questions, "What do I want? What do I really want?", are some of the substantive ones, which shape our lives. In the readings for this Eighteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time, God confronts us with examining, "What do I want? What do I really want?"

At the literal level, the First Reading describes the futility of the diligent person's exertions: "Here is one who has labored with wisdom and knowledge and skill, and yet to another who has not labored over it, he must leave property. This also is vanity and a great misfortune. For what profit comes to man from all the toil and anxiety of heart with which he has labored under the sun?" (Ecclesiastes 2:21-22) The laborer sounds active yet these commendable efforts seem temporary and futile, "vanity," as Qoheleth judges. What does the person really want?

The Psalmist declares to God, "You make an end of them in their sleep; the next morning they are like the changing grass, Which at dawn springs up anew, but by evening wilts and fades." (Psalm 90:5-6) These verses are a poetic way of admitting to the shortness of one's life, relative to God and eternity. Wilted, dehydrated grass has little substance or significance. Before God, humanity is metaphorical grass, so what do we really want, what will we pursue in light of this status?

Addressing the Colossian Christians, St. Paul teaches them in more direct terms to realize and admit what they desire and where their behaviors are leading them: "If you were raised with Christ, seek what is above, where Christ is seated at the right hand of God. Think of what is above, not of what is on earth. For you have died, and your life is hidden with Christ in God. When Christ your life appears, then you too will appear with him in glory. Put to death, then, the parts of you that are earthly: immorality, impurity, passion, evil desire, and the greed that is idolatry." (Colossians 3:1-5) St. Paul's challenge to the local Church is for the faithful to assess honestly what they want and their subsequent behaviors toward those wants.

Jesus, in St. Luke's Gospel, warns a crowd, "'Take care to guard against all greed, for though one may be rich, one's life does not consist of possessions. …Thus will it be for all who store up treasure for themselves but are not rich in what matters to God.'" (12:15, 21) Similar to the Apostle Paul, Jesus is explicit when He admonishes those around Him to be transparent about what they are desiring and seeking to acquire. Put another way, Jesus is saying, "Be careful about what you want."

What the biblical authors cite as examples are not inherently evil. Laboring "with wisdom and knowledge and skill," is laudable, yet what seems to be absent from these efforts is the awareness of God and of seeking Him. Qoheleth notes, "For what profit comes to man from all the toil and anxiety of heart with which he has labored under the sun? All his days sorrow and grief are his occupation; even at night his mind is not at rest." (Ecclesiastes 2:22-23) Our Lord distinguishes between those who work earnestly for themselves and for earthly goods (some of which are necessary for basic living and survival) versus those who also work earnestly but do so to be "'rich in what matters to God,'" (Luke 12:21) which is to say loving God and wanting to remain in Him. St. Paul's instruction, "Think of what is above, not of what is on earth," (Colossians 3:2) is not a call to become inert and neglect one's God-given talents (a point the Apostle emphasizes in his other letters, such as 1 Corinthians 12) but to examine one's outlook and desires, to determine whether Christ is the goal of one's activities or an earthly end. Viewing life secularly consists of different responses to our desires, goals and efforts compared to viewing life supernaturally, with God and for God.

The Psalmist sings of how a person with a supernatural outlook, one who desires God may petition Him: "Teach us to number our days aright, that we may gain wisdom of heart. Return, O LORD! How long? Have pity on your servants! Fill us at daybreak with your kindness, that we may shout for joy and gladness all our days. And may the gracious care of the LORD our God be ours." (Psalm 90:12-14, 17) So, what do you want? What do you really want?

WHY IS IT

A man wakes up after sleeping under an ADVERTISED blanket on an ADVERTISED mattress and pulls off ADVERTISED pajamas bathes in an ADVERTISED shower shaves with an ADVERTISED razor brushes his teeth
with ADVERTISED toothpaste washes with ADVERTISED soap puts on ADVERTISED clothes drinks a cup of ADVERTISED coffee drives to work in an ADVERTISED car and then . . . .
refuses to ADVERTISE
believing it doesn't pay.
Later if business is poor
he ADVERTISES it for sale.
